The interaction between patient and analyst may give rise to powerful internal reactions – anxiety, confusion, anger, excitement which may be difficult for the patient to recognize as an experience, and such experience may not be tolerated for more than a few moments if at all. The patient then may adopt the position of a discussant and the analyst may be drawn into such discussions, debates or theorizing. This can lead to powerful impetus towards a style of discussion which defends against the recognition of the experience. It is in fact the patient's and the analyst's contact with such emotional experience, recognized as such, that promotes a deeper understanding...

Welcome to The Los Angeles Institute and Society for Psychoanalytic Studies

LAISPS was established in 1970 as the first fully interdisciplinary psychoanalytic training program in Los Angeles to include a variety of mental health clinicians such as marriage and family therapists, social workers, and psychologists as well as physicians.

The Institute is committed to excellence in the training and education of psychoanalysts.

We invite your interest and participation.

AN INVITATION FOR TRAINING IN PSYCHOANALYSIS

Why Choose LAISPS? Independence & Depth

LAISPS is dedicated to psychoanalytic independence, which we define as an open-minded, discerning attitude toward the rich diversity of psychoanalytic theory and practice. We highly value contemporary orientations and believe that in order to understand them in depth, a strong foundation in Freud's seminal work is necessary. We are committed to the task of helping candidates forge their unique psychoanalytic identities. Come join us.

Overview and Objectives

The psychoanalytic endeavor involves the careful attempt to explore aspects of the vast unconscious realms of human experience. Such an exploration is not only an Odyssey toward origins more ancient than the 2700 year-old Homeric poem but also explorations toward the many unconscious components which color one's experience of this moment in time. Like small boats setting out to explore vast and complex regions, we enter into such an effort with awe and respect for the depths of the human psyche. In preparation for such a voyage it is prudent to search out the 'map and compass' to follow (the psychoanalytic view) and the 'vessel and crew' (personal psychoanalyst and teachers or other mentors) which most suit our hopes and goals as well as our temperament. This website offers a statement of one such avenue of psychoanalytical investigation. The psychoanalytic training program of the Northwestern Psychoanalytic Society embraces four organizing principles:

1) To work to expand upon and deepen understanding of the basic psychoanalytic principles, which have evolved over the history of the psychoanalytic movement.

2) To offer, within the many psychoanalytic points of view thusly embraced, a contemporary Kleinian-Bionian viewpoint whose basic emphasis include:

Deepening awareness of the multiple simultaneous levels

1932 - IPA Congress Wiesbaden

“The reorganization of the “American Psychoanalytical Association” can be seen as one of the most significant signs of the advance of psychoanalysis in the United States.”

As a result of this restructuring, the American Psychoanalytical Association functions as an executive and organizational body (and not just a direct association of members). Its members are affiliated with local societies.

Local IPA-Societies 1932:

Welcome
This website provides information about three independent but related Atlanta-based psychoanalytically-oriented organizations, as well as links to other national and international psychoanalytic organizations and resources.

The Emory University Psychoanalytic Institute is the training site for individuals who want to become psychoanalysts.

The Atlanta Psychoanalytic Society provides a community venue for education, lively collegial discourse and fellowship among psychoanalysts, psychoanalytically-informed mental health professionals and other individuals who share a common interest in psychoanalysis.

The Atlanta Foundation for Psychoanalysis supports the Institute and Society financially and functions as the outreach arm for Psychoanalysis in the community.

San Antonio Society for Psychoanalytic Studies
About SASPS

The San Antonio Society for Psychoanalytic Studies (SASPS) is the local affiliate of Division 39, Psychoanalysis, of the American Psychological Association. The Society has met informally for over 15 years, and was formally incorporated in 2000.

SASPS is an interdisciplinary society, comprised of psychoanalysts, psychologists, physicians, social workers, and other mental health professionals who share an interest in the application of psychoanalytic ideas to understanding human nature and treating emotional problems. SASPS sponsors a variety of activities, including reading groups, films and film discussions, educational symposia and workshops. The focus is on discussion of contemporary innovations in psychoanalytic ideas in formats that encourage lively and informal professional interchange. Members meet monthly to discuss, dissect, and review psychoanalytic articles that address such issues as psychoanalytic theory, developmental issues and conflicts, gender issues in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, transference/counter transference, and success and failures in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy. Participation in the reading group, and most of the Society's educational activities, is open to individuals interested in psychoanalysis from all levels of training, from students to experienced practitioners.

In the past several years the Society has hosted visits from several distinguished psychoanalysts, including Donnel Stern, Owen Renik, Jessica Benjamin and Nancy McWilliams. These speakers have offered lucid and original discussions of theory as well as applications of psychoanalytic principles and techniques in the form of case presentations.

The Annual Frank C. Paredes lecture is a proud undertaking of SASPS. This annual event honors the memory of a colleague who made many distinguished contributions of our community, and also provides a venue for an ongoing discussion of how culture informs and shapes the development of personal identity. Past presenters such as Cynthia de las Fuentes, Ricardo Ainslie, Melba Vasquez, David Ramirez and Jose E. Limón have contributed to our understanding of, and appreciation for the interplay and dynamics between psychology and culture.

Founded: 1973

We train the professionals who help others live productive satisfying lives

Be a part of a community that values deep understanding of the human mind.

The Cincinnati Psychoanalytic Institute (CPI) is a non-profit educational institution that offers post-graduate training to mental health professionals. Our educational programs – unique in the Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana tri-state area – are based on the theories of psychoanalysis. Our faculty is committed to passing on techniques and practices that bring about lasting change in the lives of patients.

Our core mission is to attract and teach mental health professionals who seek intensive training in the psychoanalytic approach. In addition, we offer programs for those in need of continuing education credits and sponsor events for the public which explore the arts, music, literature and societal issues from a psychoanalytic point of view. We are closely aligned and develop partnerships with other interested organizations.

About the Society

Welcome to the Saint Louis Psychoanalytic Society. This Society exists to foster the growth of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, encourage advances in its theories, and maintain professional standards in its practice of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy in the St. Louis area. It provides an organization for affiliation and communication with other similar organizations around the world, such as the American Psychoanalytic Association and its component societies. Within the St. Louis area, the Society stimulates interest in the education of psychoanalysts, fosters scientific discourse among psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists, and, through cooperation with qualified experts in other fields, contributes to other applications of psychoanalytic theories.

Welcome to the Washington Center for Psychoanalysis

The Washington Center for Psychoanalysis is a non-profit association based in Washington, DC which provides clinical and non-clinical training in psychoanalysis and psychodynamic psychotherapy, as well as other psychoanalytic theory and concepts as applied to the arts, films and theater, as well as to academia, and a full program of psychoanalytic scientific meetings, conferences and lectures. Our community, virtual and real-world, provides many opportunities for collegiality, for education and promotion of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy through community outreach projects.

Programs
The Washington Center for Psychoanalysis offers the following programs:

Washington Psychoanalytic Institute
Offers full psychoanalytic training for careers in psychoanalytic practice, teaching and research.

Modern Perspectives on Psychotherapy
Three-year training program in psychoanalytically-oriented psychotherapy for mental health professionals.

New Directions
